

A learning opportunity for underserved communities

We are pleased to announce that The Longleaf Alliance has received support from The Richard and Rita Porterfield Education Foundation to assist particularly underserved landowners, and those facing a financial hardship, in furthering their knowledge of longleaf pine management.

The intent is to remove barriers to participation in any of our Longleaf Academies offered in 2021 by covering the cost of registration.

Landowners who are members of a historically underserved community, or those who self-identify as low-income or under financial hardship, are invited to utilize the funds provided by the Trust.

Since its origin in 1995, The Longleaf Alliance has used education, outreach, research, direct involvement and hands-on experience to develop and provide the best available information and support to landowners, resource managers, policy makers, educators, scientists, and the public. We also connect members of the longleaf community to pertinent research findings that can help them overcome management challenges. To that end, we are cognizant of the unique needs of members and partners across the natural longleaf range and beyond; especially, in trying times such as these.
